pealed to the switchman for protection. He admitted her to the tower, when Peter Smith soon put in an appearance and demanded that the girl return to his house. She refused, and the switchman told Smith that he would protect the girl at all hazards.

Smith then went away, and the switchman hustled around the neighborhood and procured suitable clothing for the girl, lie then took her to his own house. Subsequently the girl went before Justice Monteverde and made complaint against Peter Smith of attempting to assault her, and accused his brother Frederick of stealing chickens. The girl told the Court that while she was in the house of the Smith brothers Frederick stole chickens from the neighbors. The brothers were each sent to the county jail for six months. The switchman will ald the girl to find her parents, In the mean time he has offered her a home at his house.

He first thought the drunken man was a Brooklyn policeman, but on approaching where Schmidt was he discovered that the offender was a member of the New York "finest" hopelessly drunk. Spreckly spoke to Schmidt, who replied with abusive language, while Clark and the Williams woman assisted in making things unpleasant for Spreckly.

After considerable difficulty the trio were landed in the precinct station-house. When Schmidt was arraigned this morning he had laid aside his uniform coat and helmet and wore an over-coat borrowed for the occasion from some citizen. He pleaded not guilty, as did his two associates. In giving an account of the matter this morning, Schmidt said:

"I came over from New York last night on a tug. We landed at one of the South Brooklyn piers. On the pier I met a friend, who asked me to escort Miss Williams up through the rough neighborhood to Van Brunt street, where she could take the car.

This arrangement was made in order to give the Senate Committee a chance to atend Senator Irwin's funeral.

A resident of Gravesend called on the Say, Justice Martin allowed Walton's counsel until Monday next to file a brief covering legal points raised by him, the principal one being the short time allowed to answer the complaint, and the inefficient demands made for the rent.

John C. Hall, bookkeeper for Stafford & Whitaker, who had previously received the rent in checks drawn by Charles Walton and signed by Francis Theodore Walton, stated that Jan. 2 last he demanded verbally and also in writing from F. T. Walton, the rent for December and January. Walton told him he would first have to seee his lawyer. A little later he heard Walton had assigned to his son, and when he spoke to the latter he said that he was the assignee.

James F. Gifford, counsel for the plaintiffs, testified that he asked Francis T. Walton for the rent. He was referred to Charles Walton, who said he would try to raise it. The witness told both the Waltons he would not accept the December rent from Charles, as assignee, nor the January rent until the December rent was paid.

The ex-turf king next took the stand. He said he had not been asked for the rent due by Stafford & Whitaker. He had received a memorandum from Hall, but did not remember this conversation with him. He knew that the assignee, his son, had offered to pay the January rent daily, at the rate of $140 a day. He told this to Lawyer Gifford, who refused to accept it in this way, or recognize the assignee as a sub-tenant. "Gifford told me I had no right to assign," said Waiton.

Cross-examined, Walton said he had not filed his schedule vet, and that his
